Unprincipled allies

There seems to be no end to the instability of the coalition of Nepal

The editorial is about recent confidence voting in Nepal. Prime Minister Pushpa Kumar Dahal ' Prachada ' lost to Nepali Congress (NC) .

Nepali Pratinidhi Sabha (Nepali Parliament) has a total 275 seats . The three major parties are : Nepali Congress (NC) – Sher Bahdur Deuba , Communist Party of Nepal (CPN UML)- KP Sharma Oli and Communist Party of Nepal , Maoist (CPN MC) - Pranchanda

The seats of these parties in Nepali parliament are : NC 88 , CPN UML 78 , and CPN MC 33 .

This was the fourth vote of confidence of Prachada , who had survived as PM just by changing sides from CPI UML to NC and then again to CPI UML .

The fall in government came after NC and CPI UML made an agreement to form a coalition and share power among them .

Nepal has seen change is number of government is recent years this is not helping the country .

On the jurisdiction of the CBI

The Supreme court on July 10 , upheld that CBI was doing “ constitutional overreach “ by investigating the matters in state list, without taking permission of state .

West Bengal government has filed the petition that CBI had registered 12 since 2020, without taking the permission of the West Bengal government. The cases registered falls under Jurisdiction of state government , means “ police “ and “ public order “ .

According to Delhi Special Police Establishment Act , 1946 (DSPE) , CBI has to take consent of the state government while filing cases in the state government’s jurisdiction .

Centre in one of its arguments said that CBI was an “ independent agency “ and it did not function in the jurisdiction of the central government . However later the government conceded that the agency can not initiate any investigation without the express authorisation of Union government under section 5 of DPSE .
